Roberta Verteramo is an Italian artist based in London. She attended Art School at the Albertina Academy of Fine Arts in Torino and in Valencia. Verteramo's early eclectic art sensibility led the Academy to offer her a teaching position a few years after her graduation. She later became a conservator of contemporary art, establishing the Triennale Museum laboratory in Milan, where she had the opportunity to meet and collaborate with internationally known artists and designers. Verteramo's eclectic inspiration led her to design ironic objects, displayed at a personal exhibition supervised by Philippe Daverio at Fuori Salone del Mobile 2011 in Milan, as well as to engage in performing art in collaboration with La Fura dels Baus, Barcellona. Her accomplishments were covered by some major art journals. In 2014 she moved to London, where she became active in the realm of luxury, crafting original and highly sophisticated artwork. Verteramo's art production is part of private collections and Foundations the world over.
